Founded in 1951 and now celebrating its 65th anniversary season, Colorado Ballet is proud to be the first U.S. ballet company to perform on the revolutionary Harlequin Liberty Switch® stage floor with innovative technology that seamlessly shifts from rigid to sprung at the touch of a button.

“The Harlequin Liberty Switch stage floor newly installed in our performance venue, the Ellie Caulkins Opera House, has forever changed performing on a sprung floor. Our dancers are amazed with how it feels to dance on, and our production crew is thankful for the hours saved not having to lay a sprung floor. According to our dancers, it’s a total game-changer as they feel more supported and fluid in their movements, giving them the highest jumps and lightest landings while helping them feel stronger and safer onstage. Truly remarkable...”

I recognize the importance of preserving the health of our dancers and minimizing risk of injury both while rehearsing and performing, which is why Colorado Ballet also confidently chooses Harlequin Floors for the studio floors in our home at the Armstrong Center for Dance.”
